Thankful for New Life

Where does giving thanks lead us? I love the story of Jesus' encounter with the ten lepers (Luke 17:11-17). On the way to Jerusalem to face the cross, Jesus encountered ten lepers. Better put, they were ten outcasts with a death sentence. By the rules of their society, lepers were forced to live apart from everyone else, and on those occasions when they drew near to others for one reason or another, they rang little bells to announce their presence and to warn others to steer clear. They were quarantined for the remainder of their lives.

As Jesus comes near their quarantine zone, the ten lepers approach him and, mindful of the rules of their society, they call out to Jesus from a distance: “Jesus, master, have mercy on us.” They took a desperate chance. Perhaps he would give them some food. Perhaps he would do more. Can you imagine that air was filled with tension as ten lives hung on the words or actions of Jesus? So, they plead, “Jesus, master, have mercy on us.”

Jesus didn't touch them. He didn't wash them. He didn't even pray for them. Jesus said: “Go, show yourselves to the priests.” In other words, Jesus was saying, go to the priests for certificates of cleansing. They had surely expected something more, something else. Maybe even a little pocket change. Who knows what made them turn and start walking toward the priests? Maybe desperation. Maybe blind hope.

Then it happened. At some point these ten outcast lepers were changed. Every diseased cell in their bodies suddenly sprang in to full health. In a twinkle of an eye, life changed. In amazement, they stopped, looked at their hands, their feet, at each other's ears, and they realized they were healed and whole.

Can you picture them bounding down the road to the priest, now running, now leaping, now dancing, wondering how the priest would react? Can you picture the glee on their faces as they anticipate a reunion with the families, with a health certificate proclaiming they are restored to society? All ten former lepers were caught up in the joy of the moment.

And now picture one of them halting in his tracks. He stops, he smiles, he turns, now walking, now running back to the Savior, back to Jesus. He comes back, “shouting, laughing, proclaiming glory to God with a joyful and thankful heart.” He runs back to Jesus, falls at his feet and gives the Son of God thanks for giving him his life back.

Only one of the ten comprehended that Jesus was (and continues to be) God's love in the flesh. When someone loves you like that, life doesn't simply snap back to normal. Instead life becomes extraordinary. The other nine wanted nothing more than to go back home and start all over again, doing what everybody else had been doing: hugging their kids, going to work on Mondays, attending synagogue on Friday night if nothing more interesting was going on. They wanted a normal life.

The one realized that Jesus healed them for a reason and that reason wasn't simply to be normal again. This one man stood before Jesus and received so much more, including peace that passes understanding, love that changes the world and the chance to live an extraordinary life.

In our time and place, how many of us pray for things to get back to normal? I fear that all too many of us are in the position of the nine lepers: We want everything to be normal again. These are extraordinary times — God wants to lead us to live extraordinary lives. Of service. Of forgiveness. Of radical love that sees no divisions among us. This is where thanksgiving can lead us!

Peace,

Pastor Rick

Women's Bible Study (M&M's)

Tuesdays, 9:30 a.m.

We are having a great time learning about other faith traditions and consequently learning about our own. On Wednesday, November 13, we will join the Elderberries on a field trip to the Franciscan Renewal Center. This replaces our Tuesday gathering that week.

Please join us any Tuesday. Follow in the bulletin to know the denomination we are studying each week. ALL are welcome

Servant Outreach Ministry

Last year several of the Angel Tree moms asked for routine household goods rather than personal gifts. This is the reality: simple items like soap and toothpaste supersede gifts. Jesus reminds us to care for the widow and orphans and that "whatever we do for the least of these my people so you also have done for me." It's with that directive in mind that our November focus is to help cover the basics. Here is the basic list:

Laundry detergent
Shampoo	Conditioner	Toothpaste	Dish soap
Toothbrushes	Deodorant	Bar soap

You may include anything else as you wish but please remember that we are looking for hygiene essentials.

Please place them in a paper shopping bag and return them to church by Dec. 1. We will have shopping bags with the list attached available every Sunday in November.

LUNCHES FOR LEARNING CONTINUES

LUNCHES FOR

Learning

We continue to focus our thoughts, prayers and giving to the Lunches for Learning program in Honduras. We are prayerful and thus hopeful that we will be able to sponsor at least 10 kids annually. The cost per child is $150.00. Brochures are available on Sundays. You are encouraged to chat with Paula Sturgeon... she may talk your arm off because she loves this ministry so very much. Her phone is 480.236.6378 or e-mail her at paulasturgeon@me.com.

Faith Formation Tips for Home

Prayer & Devotions — Chat With God

One of the ways we pass on our faith and values to our kids is through time together in prayer. Let's face it ... it can be hard to pray! We have expectations that our prayers should be eloquent or fancy ...or sound pre-planned and perfect. That's not true! Prayer is simply a chat with God ... talking with a close friend about life. As parents, one of the best ways to incorporate prayer is ... to just pray! The first few times you pray randomly with your kids throughout the day might feel weird, but slowly and surely it will become a faith habit and something that reminds your kids (and you!) of God's presence in all parts of the day. So, chat with God with your kids. You're equipping them to do the same when you're not with them and they are needing a reminder. of God's never-ending love and presence.

This month, let's all work to pray aloud with our kids a bit more. This way, we can bring down the weird moments or nerves around prayer and equip them for their solo chats with God!

Compassion
Central

POP's Visitation and Care Ministry

This is one of the things that is happening here at Prince of Peace.

What is Compassion Central? It is the ministry of people visiting people.

People who are at home, or in an institution of some sort. It is people bringing a smiling face, a cheerful voice, a listening ear or a reassuring hug. I was away for a few days recently and when I returned I had several folks come to me and tell me about their visit to another and what the situation was with the one whom they visited. It is really wonderful to hear these reports because it tells me the ministry of visitation continues. If you are one who has been called to visit or would like to explore this ministry, please contact me. You are welcome to call me at church, stop and see me after worship, or call my cell (602.740.7187).

Pastor Paul

From Your Council President

by Debbie Nelson

As we move into the end of the year and begin to prepare for the upcoming holidays, let's not forget about an important holiday, Veteran's Day. On November 11, Americans will have the opportunity to celebrate the service and sacrifice of all U.S. veterans, for without their sacrifices, our nation would not have the freedoms we enjoy today. It is also a time to remember the sacrifice that God made when He sent His one and only Son to die for our sins. Reflecting on the sacrifices made for us is important, both from the brave men and women who have defended our country, but more importantly, through the sacrifice made by Jesus Christ.

On October 24 and 25, Pastor Rick, Keri Herding, Jim Schmidlin, Steve Edgar and myself attended the Southwest Church Safety and Security Summit. It was a very informative conference. We were given many ideas on how to keep our campus safe. One big takeaway that I feel is an important reminder for all of us, no matter where we are, is to be aware of our surroundings. Our safety and security at POP is a high priority.

The next council meeting is November 19 at 6 p.m. in the conference room. As always, you are welcome to attend the meeting. Also, please feel free to contact me with any questions, comments or concerns that you may have.

Blessings to each of you,
Debbie

Kudos to Pam Godward Evans

Tim Healy, sports broadcaster, introduced Pam Godward (Evans) at a celebratory luncheon as Pam was inducted into the ASU Hall of Fame. In addition, she was recognized on the field at the Oct. 12 football game.

According to Healy, "Pam set the standard for the Sun Devil Women's Gymnastics program that would come to be recognized as one of the best in the country over the next few decades."

In her acceptance speech, Pam gave credit to her dad, Bill Godward, who encouraged her to hand balance in their backyard and then to walk on her hands throughout the house, trying to make a complete circle through their kitchen-living room-hallway, etc. She also gave credit to her sister, Lynne McGinley, for being her biggest supporter throughout her gymnastics career and always being there for her.

Congratulations to Pam and Lynne for a very proud moment.

172 Quilts Crafted and Delivered

A beautiful display of quilts adorned the communion rails on October 20. The quilts were made by the Sew & Tie group and represented some 172 quilts made and delivered to ICM, Lutheran Social Services, Helen's Hope Chest and St. Andrews' Children's Clinic in the past year. The group welcomes new members — there is a place for those who sew, cut squares or are able to tie. They meet Fridays at 9 a.m. for a time of stitchery and fellowship!!

Prayers for Healing November 3 & 17

Loving God, I pray that you will comfort me in my suffering, lend skill to the hands of my healers, and bless the means used for my cure. Give me such confidence in the power of your grace, that even when I am afraid, I will put my whole trust in you; through our Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

Whatever you are dealing with, prayer can help. The simple act of turning your worry and pain over to God is wonderfully powerful. You are invited to the holy experience of healing prayer. Join us at the altar directly following worship and your pastors will pray with you about anything on your mind. God has so much to offer!

LUTHERAN CHURCH AND PRESCHOOL

A big thank you to all who joined us for Trunk or Treat. We had so much fun!

Grand Canyon Synod Bishop Deborah Hutterer visited POPIIT (Prince of Peace Infant and Toddler Care) in October.

Accountable Care Organizations

by Beth Schneider

On a recent visit to your healthcare provider, you may have noticed a poster in the office or received a letter or e-mail informing you that your provider is participating in an Accountable Care Organization (ACO). This is especially likely if you participate in original Medicare. This leads to the question, what is an ACO?

The term was first used in 2006 by a researcher at Dartmouth Medical School. Since that time, the concept has continued to evolve. An ACO is generally defined as a group of healthcare providers, such as doctors, hospitals, health plans, etc., who voluntarily come together to provide coordinated high-quality care to a group of patients, especially the chronically ill. The goal is to provide coordinated care to ensure that patients receive the right care at the right time while avoiding unnecessary spending by eliminating care that has no proven benefit or constitutes an unnecessary duplication of services. The primary care physician is the essential component. ACO participants focus on preventive care because it is more economical to prevent an illness than treat one.

Who is forming accountable care organizations? Some of the largest health insurers in the country, including Humana, United Health and Aetna, have formed their own ACOs. Large hospital systems are becoming ACOs that employ the majority of their providers by purchasing physician practices. In addition, some large multi-specialty physician groups have become their own ACOs by networking with neighboring hospitals. There are strict regulations that must be followed before establishing an ACO and the ability to form an ACO may be dependent on the ability to access the substantial capital required for the initial investment.

In the 1990s, health management organizations were seen as the way to reduce health care costs. In many ways, ACOs seem to be a lot like HMOs which became extremely unpopular. While both HMOs and ACOs attempt to reduce health care costs, there is one major difference. HMOs required members to receive care from HMO providers. Frequently HMOs would refuse to refer patients to specialists. If members selected a provider outside of the HMO network, the HMO would refuse to cover the cost. Patient options for care outside of the HMO were very limited. ACOs, however, must comply with a list of quality measures to ensure that they are not cutting costs by refusing necessary care. In addition, there is another important difference. While doctors and hospitals will likely refer patients to hospitals and specialists within the ACO network, patients are usually free to see the doctors of their choice outside the network without paying more. ACO providers are required to inform their patients that they can go to another doctor if they are uncomfortable participating in the ACO. Patients may also decline to have their data shared within the ACO, but usually the patient must affirmatively inform the ACO that they do not want their medical information shared.

Will ACOs become a permanent part of the health care system? Although ACOs are becoming pervasive, few are willing to say that they are the ultimate solution to high health care costs. They may be just one step in the effort to reduce those costs. Once it was assumed that HMOs were the ultimate solution and history reveals how that turned out.
